MR. BURKE: She saw the Webster family on TV, when they were making a plea for assistance or help in finding their daughter. That was in, I think, December of 1981. She subsequently called the --

MR. RAPPAPORT: It was January of

MR. BURKE: January of '82.

She called the parents anonymously and told them that she had information pertinent to the Joan Webster investigation. I'm not sure what bearing that has on this particular overall issue, but I wanted to at least put it on the record, that is, if I asked her those questions, that would be in substance what she would testify to.

THE COURT: Well, you're trying to show a pattern of conduct showing a scheme, plan. The fact that she calls some parents, what would that have to do with it, unless you want it in?

MR. RAPPAPORT: No, no, I'm objecting to it, your Honor. I don't think it's relevant. What we're concerned with is what he may have done to her back in 1971 or '72 that may show a common scheme, a common pattern and/or whatever. I don't think the fact that she may have seen Joan Webster's parents and said 'well, this guy did it to me, he must have done it to her", I don't see that it's relevant.

MR. BURKE: I'm not going to go into that.

THE COURT: Okay.

END OF BENCH CONFERENCE.

THE COURT: May I see you gentlemen for a minute.

BENCH CONFERENCE as follows:

THE COURT: I'm going to adjourn at quarter of four today. Do you think you'll be going beyond that in cross?

MR. RAPPAPORT: I don't think I'll go beyond that.

THE COURT: What do you have, two more witnesses?

MR. RAPPAPORT: Judge, I should say, it's just a little bit of a problem.
